III. EXHIBITS

The parties shall meet and confer in advance of trial and attempt to resolve any objections to exhibits in light of the court's rulings on the motions in limine.

IV. DISCOVERY EXCERPTS

For deposition testimony to be offered in lieu of live testimony at trial, the parties shall submit to the court and opposing counsel deposition transcripts (the court prefers the minimized version with 4 pages per page, if available) that have been highlighted and tabbed to reflect the pertinent portions of testimony.

V. FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

At the conclusion of trial, the court will assign a deadline by which the parties shall file revised (for the government) and initial (for Cathcart) findings and conclusions that refer to the actual testimony and evidence presented at trial with citations to the trial transcript and to exhibits actually admitted at trial.

VI. TRIAL SCHEDULE AND TIME LIMITS

Trial will be held on the following days between 8:30 a.m. - 1:30 p.m., with two 15-minute breaks: November 19, 20, 23, 30 and December 1, 3, 4. The government will be allotted four days (18 hours) trial time for any opening statement and direct and cross-examination of witnesses; Cathcart will be allotted three days (13.5 hours) for any opening statement and direct and cross-examination of witnesses. At the conclusion of the evidence, the court will discuss with the parties the necessity for closing arguments in light of the filing of proposed findings and conclusions.

VII. MISCELLANEOUS

With regard to the government's question about Derivium Capital's default, the court has reviewed the docket which reflects that at the hearing on the government's motion for default judgment, the government withdrew its motion without prejudice to refiling after the claims against the other defendants have been resolved. Thus, the government must refile its motion and notice it for hearing on Magistrate Judge Spero's calendar after the court enters its findings of fact and conclusions of law as to Cathcart.

With regard to Cathcart's request that the court clarify if the denial of his motion for reconsideration was also intended to address his alternative motion for entry of a permanent injunction against himself, the court has once again reviewed the papers and clarifies that both requests were and remain DENIED. The court found no basis for reconsideration of the order granting partial summary judgment on the loan vs. sale issue. To the extent that the request for reconsideration was based on the same facts supporting the requested injunction the court was and is unpersuaded by the authority that Cathcart proffers.

Specifically, Cathcart relies on Chathas v. Local 134 IBEW, 233 F.3d 508 (7th Cir. 2000), in support of his contention that his earlier agreement to a stipulated permanent injunction both (1) renders the case moot, and (2) judicially estops the government from arguing that its rejection of defendant's stipulation was based on its narrower scope, as compared with the injunction sought by the government in its complaint. Cathcart's reliance on this case is wholly inapposite. In Chathas, plaintiffs sought injunctive relief, and the defendant made a formal offer of judgment pursuant to Rule 68, offering to stipulate to permanent injunctive relief. When plaintiffs rejected the offer of judgment, the defendant moved the district court to enter a permanent injunction setting forth the same terms as those requested by plaintiffs. See Chathas, 233 F.3d at 511. When the court did so, simultaneously dismissing the case as moot in view of the permanent injunction, plaintiffs appealed therefrom on grounds that the district court failed to include in the injunction an express finding of illegality on defendant's part. Here – putting aside the fact that Chathas is non-binding authority on this court - Cathcart fails to represent that he has made any formal offer of judgment pursuant to Rule 68. More importantly, and as the government notes in its opposition, the permanent injunction entered on defendant's request in Chathas contained the same terms as those sought to be enforced by plaintiffs. This is simply not the case here. IT IS SO ORDERED. Dated: November 6, 2009 United States District Judge
